1 Introduction

The purpose of these Insider Guidelines (the "Insider Guidelines") of Sitowise Group Plc (the "Company") is to summarize the most important rules and restrictions regarding inside information and the use and management thereof in the Company. Insider Guidelines include rules and regulations about prohibited use of inside information, the Company's insider lists, disclosure and delayed disclosure of inside information and notifying transactions of the Company's management and their closely associated persons.

These Insider Guidelines apply to all persons employed by, at the service of or in a position of trust, including the Board of Directors, (each an "Employee") with the Company and its group companies. These Insider Guidelines are also applicable to parties who by virtue of some other agreement or otherwise are performing tasks through which they have access to inside information relating to the Company and who have thus been entered into the insider list of the Company. These parties could be, for example, advisors, auditors or credit rating agencies (each a "Service Provider"). In addition, the Insider Guidelines describe certain notification obligations that the rules and regulations impose on the closely associated persons of the members of the Company's Board of Directors and Management Team.

These Insider Guidelines are based on Finnish and EU laws and regulation, of which the most important are the EU's Regulation 596/2014/EU on market abuse¹ (the "MAR"), the Level 2 delegated regulations adopted under the MAR², standards relating to MAR issued by ESMA, the Finnish Securities Markets Act (746/2012, as amended, the "SMA"), the Finnish Penal Code (39/1889, as amended) as well as the guidelines for insiders of Nasdaq Helsinki Oy ("Nasdaq Helsinki").

As a main rule, these Insider Guidelines apply to all Employees and Service Providers regardless of their station country. In addition, certain disclosure obligations imposed in these Insider Guidelines apply to the closely associated persons of the persons discharging managerial responsibilities in the Company (for further information, see Section 5).

Regardless of these Insider Guidelines and any instructions given by the Company, the Employees and Service Providers are always personally responsible for complying with the laws, regulations and guidelines concerning inside information.

¹ Regulation (EU) No 596/2014 of the European parliament and of the Council of 16 April 2014 on market abuse (market abuse regulation) and repealing Directive 2003/6/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council and Commission Directives 2003/124/EC, 2003/125/EC and 2004/72/EC.

² There is a broad level 2 regulative framework related to the MAR, and the regulations will be given as level 2 Commission delegated regulations. The Commission will give level 2 regulations regarding, for example, technical procedures pertaining to the disclosure and delay of disclosure of inside information, the form and pattern of disclosure and publication of the business transactions of managers and the form and way for updating insider lists.

Everyone must in each case personally assess whether the information he or she possesses constitutes inside information. This obligation applies any time regardless of whether the person is entered into an insider list and regardless from whom or in which way he or she has obtained the information.

2 Inside information and the prohibited use thereof

2.1 What constitutes inside information?

The Company is continuously in possession of confidential information, part of which may be inside information. Inside information is defined as information which:

- relates directly or indirectly to one or more issuers, such as the Company, or to one or more financial instruments, such as the Company's shares;
- is precise by nature;
- has not been published; and
- the information, if it were made public, would be likely to have a significant effect (positive or negative) on the prices of those financial instruments or on the price of related derivative financial instruments.

Information is considered precise, if it indicates a set of circumstances or events that have already existed or occurred or that can reasonably be expected to exist or occur. Preciseness also requires that the information is specific enough to enable a conclusion to be drawn as to the possible effect of that set of circumstances or event on the price of the financial instruments.

The Company assesses on a case-by-case basis whether the information at hand constitutes inside information. Inside information might be, inter alia, unpublished information on:

- any essential change in the Company's result and/or financial position;
- any essential change in the Company's operations and strategy;
- a significant acquisition;
- a merger or demerger of the Company or other significant corporate arrangement; or
- a significant share issue, purchase or redemption offer or another change relating to the shares of the Company, such as the combining or division of shares.

In these Insider Guidelines, a financial instrument shall mean, in addition to the Company's shares, all other types of financial instruments such as options.³

³ A financial instrument can be any of the financial instruments defined in the directive 2014/65/EU Article 4 Section 1 Subsection 15, i.e. for example transferable securities; money-market instruments; units in collective investment undertakings; options, futures, swaps, warrants, forward rate agreements or any other derivative contracts relating to securities,

2.2 Prohibition against use and unlawful disclosure of inside information

Misuse and unlawful disclosure of inside information is prohibited. A person possessing inside information shall not:

- use or attempt to use inside information by
 - acquiring or disposing of, for its own account or for the account of a third party, directly or indirectly, financial instruments to which that information relates; or
 - cancelling or amending an order concerning a financial instrument to which the information relates if the order was placed before the person concerned possessed the inside information.
- recommend that another person engage in insider dealing or induce another person to engage in insider dealing; or
- unlawfully disclose inside information, except where the disclosure is made in the normal exercise of an employment, a profession or duties.

Unlawful disclosure of inside information arises where a person possesses inside information and discloses that information to any other person, except where the disclosure is made in the normal exercise of an employment, a profession or duties. If there is a reasonable cause for disclosing inside information and the information is disclosed in the normal course of the exercise of a person's employment, profession or duties, the information must not, however, be disclosed without first securing that the recipient of the information is subject to an appropriate duty of confidentiality. The recipient of the information must also be entered in the project-specific insider list and be informed of the related duties and obligations (see Section 0).

The prohibition to use and disclose inside information applies to all persons who have inside information, regardless of whether they are employed or at the service of the Company or not or whether they have received the information on purpose, by accident, or without permission. The prohibition to use and disclose inside information is effective until the information in question has been made public or until it has otherwise lost its inside character, e.g., as a result of the termination of an insider project.

3 Insider list

3.1 The Company's Insider List

The Company maintains a list of Employees and Service Providers who have access to inside information ("Insider List"). The Company's Insider List comprises of one or more project-based insider lists.

currencies, interest rates or yields, or derivative instruments for the transfer of credit risk and financial contracts for differences; and other derivatives instruments or financial indices which may be settled physically or in cash.

A project-specific insider list is maintained when the Company has an ongoing project or an event, which contains inside information and the disclosure of which has been delayed in accordance with Section 4.2. Each project-specific insider list contains solely the information on such persons who have access to such certain inside information.

The Company assesses under each circumstance whether a project or other event constitutes inside information. If inside information is constituted, the Company assesses whether it has an obligation to disclose the information immediately or whether there are grounds for delayed disclosure, in which case a project-specific insider list is established immediately. The Company's Board of Directors and the CEO decide on the delayed disclosure of insider information based on the assessment whether the grounds for delayed disclosure are met. In exceptional circumstances, the CEO can decide on the delayed disclosure alone due to the urgency of the matter and if it is therefore justified (Company's Board of Directors and CEO together as the subject to decide on the delayed disclosure or exceptionally the CEO alone "Persons entitled to decide on the delayed disclosure"). Decision concerning the establishment of a project-specific insider list is made by the persons entitled to decide on the delayed disclosure simultaneously with the decision on delayed disclosure. Correspondingly, the persons in question decide on the termination of the insider project once the inside information concerning the project is made public or the project ceases to constitute inside information due to cessation of the project or for some other reason.

Insider list is kept up to date in accordance with an electronic format so that its subsequent changing is not possible. An insider list is not public, but the Finnish Financial Supervisory Authority (the "FSA") has the right to obtain information on the contents of the list in order to conduct its supervisory duties.

3.2 Notification on entry in the Insider List

Each recipient of inside information must be notified of the confidential insider nature of the information in question. The recipient is entered in the Company's Insider List without delay. Each person entered into the Insider List is notified by e-mail or via another suitable digital communication channel of the entry into the Insider List, the obligations arising therefrom and related sanctions. The person receiving such notification shall promptly confirm the receipt of such notification by return message, including an acknowledgement of the obligations relating to inside information and sanctions applicable to insider dealing and unlawful disclosure of inside information. The Company also notifies each person entered into a certain project-specific insider list of the termination of the project by e-mail.

3.3 Information to be entered in the Insider List

The Company's Insider List includes at least the following information:

1. the date of establishment of the project-specific insider list;
2. the person's last and first names (also birth surname(s) if different);

3. the personal identification number of a Finnish citizen, or the date of birth of a non-Finnish citizen;
4. position at the Company or another ground for entry in the list;
5. home address;
6. professional and personal telephone numbers;
7. the company whose representative the person is and the said company's address;
8. the date and time since when the person has had access to the inside information; and
9. the date on which the ground for the person's inclusion in the list ceased to exist.

The Company shall promptly update the insider list under the following circumstances:

1. when there is a change in the reason why a person is included on the insider list, when the person has already been registered on the insider list;
2. when there is a new person who has access to inside information and needs therefore to be added to the insider list; and
3. when a person ceases to have access to inside information.

Each update shall specify the date and time when the change triggering the update occurred. The Company shall keep the insider list for a period of at least five (5) years after it is drawn up or updated.

3.4 Insider lists maintained by third parties

The Service Provider acting on behalf or on the account of the Company shall itself maintain an insider list of its employees who have access to inside information concerning the Company. The CEO informs the relevant Service Providers of the requirement to maintain an insider list. The insider lists maintained by such Service Providers must adhere to the applicable regulations.

4 Public disclosure of inside information and delayed disclosure

4.1 Public disclosure of inside information

The Company is as an issuer required to inform the public as soon as possible of inside information which concerns it or its financial instruments. The Company shall ensure that the inside information is made public in a manner which enables fast access and complete, correct and timely assessment of the information by the public. The information to be disclosed will be disclosed via a stock exchange release submitted to the central media, the FSA and Nasdaq Helsinki. In addition, the information is published and maintained on the Company's website for a period of at least five (5) years.

The obligation to disclose inside information will always be triggered if the Company, an Employee of the Company or a person acting on the Company's behalf or on its account, discloses any inside information to any third party, unless such third party is bound by a duty of confidentiality by law or on the basis of an agreement. Therefore, a non-disclosure agreement must always be entered into with all third parties in any dealings that may concern inside information.

4.2 Delayed disclosure of inside information

If inside information is related to matters under preparation or is otherwise not ready to be published, the Company may, on its own responsibility, delay the public disclosure of inside information, provided that the following conditions are met:

1. immediate disclosure of inside information is likely to prejudice the legitimate interests of the Company;
2. delay of disclosure is not likely to mislead the public; and
3. the Company can ensure the confidentiality of that information.

The decision on delayed disclosure can be made by the persons entitled to decide on a delayed disclosure. The CEO or a person designated by him/her documents the decision to delay the disclosure of inside information along with the grounds therefor and records the decision and the grounds therefor into a delayed disclosure database. The persons entitled to decide on a delayed disclosure will simultaneously make a decision to establish a project-specific insider list regarding the inside information in question. At least the following information is recorded in the delayed disclosure database:

- name of the insider project;
- main contents of the insider project;
- date and time of origin of the inside information;
- date and time of establishment of the insider list;
- date and time of the decision on delayed disclosure;
- information of the persons responsible for the decision on delayed disclosure; and
- an evaluation and report of how the conditions for the delay of the disclosure of inside information are met.

After the decision on delayed disclosure the Company must ensure the fulfillment of all conditions for the delay throughout the procedure, that is, until the inside information has been made public or the project in question has been cancelled. The persons entitled to decide on a delayed disclosure will monitor that the conditions for the delayed disclosure are met.

If the Company is no longer able to ensure the confidentiality of the information the disclosure of which has been delayed, or the conditions for the delay are otherwise no longer met, the Company discloses the information to the public as soon as possible. An example of this situation is where there are rumors on the market relating to the inside information, and the rumor is sufficiently accurate to indicate that the inside information has not remained confidential. The Employees and the Service Providers must contact the persons entitled to decide on a delayed disclosure immediately if she/he/it suspects that the confidentiality of the inside information is no longer secured.

In connection with the public disclosure of the inside information (the disclosure of which has been delayed), the Company provides the FSA with a written notice of the delay. The notification to the FSA must include the following information:

- name and details of the Company and contact information of the person (incl. title of the person) making the notification;
- identification of the inside information that was subject to delayed disclosure;
- date and time of the decision on delayed disclosure; and
- the information of (persons entitled to decide on a delayed decision), who are responsible for the decision on delayed disclosure.

If the insider project terminates, there is no longer a requirement to disclose the information and no notice of delay needs to be provided to the FSA.

5 Notifying transactions of managers and of persons closely associated to them

5.1 Notification requirement

The Company has defined the members of the Board of Directors, the CEO and the members of the Management Team as persons discharging managerial responsibilities in the Company (hereinafter the "Managers") in accordance with MAR. The Managers and persons closely associated with them (hereinafter the "Related Parties") have an individual obligation to notify the Company and the FSA of transactions conducted on their own account relating to the shares or debt instruments of the Company or other financial instruments or derivatives linked thereto.

The Company notifies the Managers in writing of their obligation to notify transactions. In addition, the Company maintains a list of all Managers and their Related Parties. The Managers must notify their respective Related Parties of the obligations of the Related Parties in writing and must keep a copy of this notification. The Managers must also provide the Company with a list of their Related Parties, and update such list whenever necessary.

The Related Parties of the Managers mean the following:

- Manager's spouse, cohabiting partner or partner in registered partnership ⁴;
- dependent child, in accordance with national law⁵;
- Manager's relative⁶ who has shared the same household for at least one year on the date of the transaction concerned; and
- legal person⁷, trust or partnership, the managerial responsibilities of which are discharged by⁸ or that is directly or indirectly controlled by⁹ or that is set up for the benefit of or whose economic interests are substantially equivalent to those of a Manager or their Related Party.

The duty to declare applies to any transaction made by a Manager or a Related Party once a total value of EUR 5,000 has been reached within a calendar year. The EUR 5,000 threshold is calculated by adding the value of all transactions together, without netting. Such transactions include inter alia transactions with the Company's shares and options (see the full definition of notifiable financial instruments in section 5.3). Transactions with financial instruments include:

- acquisition, disposal, subscription and exchange;
- pledge or lending;
- gifts and donations, both given and received and inheritance, both given and received;
- transactions by persons professionally arranging or executing transactions on behalf of the Manager or their Related Party, also when exercising discretion; and
- transactions made under a unit-linked life insurance policy, where the policyholder is a Manager or their Related Party, the investment risk is borne by the policyholder, and the policyholder can influence the investment decisions within the life insurance policy.

5.2 Submitting and disclosing notifications

A notification shall be made by the Managers and their Related Parties promptly and no later than three (3) business days after the date of the transaction to ⁴ Spouse refers to marital spouse or a partner considered to be equivalent to a spouse in accordance with national law. In Finland, this includes partner of a registered partnership (referred to in the Finnish Act on Registered Partnerships) and a cohabiting partner who has lived in a shared household with the Manager for at least five years or who has, or has had, a joint child or joint parental responsibility for a child together with the Manager. Unless the said conditions are met, the person living in a shared household with the Manager is not deemed a Related Party.

⁵ A dependent child means a child, who has not turned 18. After a child sharing the same household with the Manager has turned 18, he/she is deemed relative who shares the same household with the Manager.

⁶ A relative means relatives referred to in the Finnish Code of Inheritance (40/1965, as amended) chapter 2, such as children, grandchildren, parents, grandparents and siblings.

⁷ Legal person includes all kinds of legal persons, such as limited liability companies, limited liability housing companies, foundations and registered associations, and also corporations and arrangements unknown to Finnish legislation, such as trust arrangements under common law systems.

⁸ Discharging managerial responsibilities means here, with regard to issuers, that the issuer has defined the person as discharging managerial responsibilities in the said issuer, and with regard to private entities, that the person acts as a member or a deputy member of a board of directors or a supervisory board or as a chief executive officer or their deputy, or in a corresponding position in the entity in question.

the Company and the FSA. The Company has an obligation to disclose the received notification in the form of a stock exchange release (message category "Managers' transactions"), which is submitted to the central media, the FSA and Nasdaq Helsinki Oy within two business days after receipt of such a notification. The Company posts and maintains all published notifications on its website for a period of at least five (5) years.

The transactions shall be notified to FSA by sending the required information in the notification form available on FSA's website: www.finanssivalvonta.fi/en/capital-markets/issuers-and-investors/Managers-transactions/. The form is sent to FSA via secure email securemail.bof.fi to johdonkaupat@finanssivalvonta.fi and the Company to trading@sitowise.com. The Managers and their Related Parties may authorize another person to submit the said notification on their behalf. The notification of transactions must contain the name of the person submitting the notification, the reason for the notification, the name of the relevant issuer, the nature of the transaction, indicating a description and the identifier of the financial instrument, the date and place of the transaction and the price and volume of the transaction.

The notification must also contain the following information regarding the Company:

- the LEI-identifier of the Company: 743700HOHMOHAANHFF73
- ISIN code, if the notification regards such financial instrument of the Company, which are subject to public trading (e.g., the Company's shares ISIN code: FI4000480215). Otherwise it is noted, that the financial instrument does not have ISIN code.

5.3 Financial instruments subject to the notification requirement

Financial instruments subject to the notification obligation, include:

1. the Company's shares;
2. the Company's debt instruments, such as bonds and convertible bonds, money-market instruments (e.g., certificates of deposits and commercial papers) and interest rate warrants;
3. derivatives linked to the Company's shares and debt instruments, such as options, forwards, futures, swaps, warrants, credit default swaps (CDSs) and contracts for difference (CFDs);
4. units and shares in funds, including investment funds and alternative investment funds (UCITS/AIF) and exchange-traded funds (ETFs), where the Company's shares or other financial instruments represent 20% or more of the composition of the fund, provided that the Manager or the Related Party knows or could have knowledge of the composition;
5. index-related products and basket products where the Company's shares or other financial instruments represent 20% or more of the composition of the product, provided that the Manager or the Related Party knows or could have knowledge of the composition; and
6. other financial instruments linked to the Company's shares or debt instruments.

With respect to items 4 and 5 above, if the composition of the fund is confidential or otherwise not public, no notification obligation applies. Moreover, the notification obligation arises only when the investment to the fund is made or the investment in the fund is changed. There is no obligation to notify the subsequent transactions conducted by the fund itself that change the composition of the fund, unless the Manager, or the relevant Related Party, can influence the investment decisions of the fund itself.

The notification obligation does not usually arise in connection with investment funds maintained by banks or other financial service providers, since it is very rare, that, within such funds, one share or debt instrument would represent 20% or more of the composition of the fund. In addition, the treasurer decides on investments in such investment funds.

6 Trading restrictions

6.1 General trading restriction

Trading in the shares or other financial instruments of the Company is always prohibited when holding inside information relating to the Company its financial instruments, regardless of whether the person has been entered into the Company's Insider List. An insider may neither trade in the share or other financial instruments of the Company nor disclose inside information to an outside party. It should be noted that, during an insider project, trading is prohibited also in the securities or other financial instruments of another publicly listed company potentially involved in the project.

Trading restrictions relating to an insider project expire after the Company has (i) published the project through a stock exchange release in a detailed enough manner, or (ii) separately notified the insider of termination of the insider position regarding the projects or actions in question. If the person entered into the Insider List is not sure whether they still remain in the Insider List, the person in question should contact the CFO or another person designated by the CEO prior to commencing trading. If a person participating in the preparation of a set of measures or an arrangement has reasons to assume that such set of measures or arrangement may later lead to the setting up of an insider project, the person in question should contact the CFO or another person designated by the CEO prior to commencing trading.

The trading restrictions stated above apply also to dependent children of the insiders and companies which are controlled by an insider. The insiders are responsible for complying with the trading restrictions also when the administration of their financial instruments has been given to another person, such as portfolio manager.

6.2 Closed period

The Managers may not conduct any transactions on their own account or for the account of a third party, directly or indirectly, relating to the Company's shares or other financial instruments during a closed period of thirty (30) calendar days before the announcement of an interim financial report or a year-end report, including the day of publication of said report. The Company notifies the Managers of the closed period in advance.

Although the closed period does not, as a main rule, apply to the Related Parties of the Managers, the Managers of the Company must inform their respective Related Parties of the trading restriction during the closed period. Notwithstanding the above stated, the trading restrictions during the closed period apply also to dependent children of the Managers and companies which are controlled by the Manager.

If the Manager has invested in a fund the decisions of the treasurer of which they can themselves influence, the closed period applies also to such fund, if the shares or other financial instruments of the Company represent 20% or more of the composition of the fund. The Manager must inform the treasurer of such fund of the closed period, and the fund in question may not carry out transactions with the Company's shares or other financial instruments during the closed period.

The Company has expanded the trading restrictions during the closed period to cover also such Employees and other persons, who are not Managers, and who have a possibility to acquire information on the interim financial report or the year-end report of the Company due to their position or duties before the publication thereof ("Closed Period Employees").

The Company's Chief Communications Officer or another person designated by the CEO notifies all those persons who are deemed Closed Period Employees of their position as Closed Period Employees. Closed Period Employees are subject to the same restrictions arising out of the closed period as the Managers. The trading restrictions during the closed period apply also to dependent children of the Closed Period Employees and companies which are controlled by a Closed Period Employee.

The Managers and the Closed Period Employees are responsible for complying with the trading restrictions also when the administration of their financial instruments has been given to another person, such as portfolio manager.

6.3 Exceptions from the trading restrictions during the closed period

The Company may exceptionally allow a Manager to trade on their own account or for the account of a third party during the closed period under the following limited circumstances:

1. due to the characteristics of the trading involved for transactions made under, or related to, an employee share or saving scheme, qualification or entitlement of shares, or transactions where the beneficial interest in the relevant security does not change, or
2. on a case-by-case basis due to the existence of exceptional circumstances, such as severe financial difficulty, which require the immediate sale of the shares.

It must be emphasized that the general prohibition of insider trading applies in all of the above listed situations. Thus, even if the Company allows the Manager to trade in the shares or other financial instruments, the said Manager may not use inside information for their own benefit or for the benefit of another party in the transaction.

The CEO and the Board of Directors decides whether the Manager is allowed to trade in the Company's shares or other financial instruments during the closed period. If the Manager in question is the CEO, the decision is made by the Board of Directors and if the manager in question is a member of the Board, the decision is made by the CEO.

The Company may allow a Closed Period Employee to trade on their own account or for the account of a third party during the closed period on a case-by-case basis due to the existence of exceptional circumstances. The CFO is responsible for the decisions regarding a Closed Period Employee's right to trade in the Company's shares or other financial instruments during the closed period.

7 Market soundings

A market sounding comprises the communication of information, prior to the announcement of a transaction, in order to gauge the interest of potential investors in a possible transaction and the conditions relating to it, to one or more potential investors in the financial and/or capital markets. Market soundings may be conducted by the Company itself or Service Providers acting on behalf of it or on its account. Where the disclosing market participant complies with paragraphs 3 and 5 of Article 11 of the MAR, disclosure of inside information shall not be considered to be unlawful. Instead, the disclosure is deemed to be made in the normal exercise of a person's employment, profession or duties (so called safe harbor provision).

A disclosing market participant shall, before making the disclosure, evaluate and document whether the information in question is inside information, obtain the consent of the person receiving the market sounding to receive inside information and inform the person in question of the prohibitions related to the use and disclosure of inside information and giving advice based on it. The disclosing market participant shall also make and maintain a record of all information given in connection with market sounding, information on the identity of the person receiving the information and the time of disclosure. The Company has specific internal guidelines and procedures for market soundings, which must always be followed in connection with market soundings regardless of whether inside information is disclosed. Before commencing market soundings the person in question must always contact the Company's CEO, CFO or the Board of Directors in advance.

8 Management of insider issues

8.1 General information on insider management

These Insider Guidelines shall be delivered to all insiders of the Company and are made available on the Company's intranet. The Company organizes training on these Insider Guidelines. The CFO is responsible for these Insider Guidelines and general insider management in the Company, and that person answers questions regarding the Insider Guidelines and other insider issues.

The Company supervises the trading of its insiders, Managers and their Related Parties as well as Closed Period Employees. The Company also reviews the information contained in its Insider List. At least once a year, the Company sends an extract of the trades declared to the Company to each Manager and their Related Parties as well as a list of the declared Related Parties to each Manager for review and potential completion and updates.

The Company has established a so-called whistleblowing system for the purpose of reporting potential breaches of financial markets and market abuse legislation. The said system enables the persons employed by or at the service of the Company to report of suspected breaches through a secure communication channel on a no-names basis.

8.2 Handling personal information

In order to fulfill its obligations under MAR and SMA, the Company has the right to collect and store personal information on persons entered into the Company's Insider List, the list of the Managers and their Related Persons, the list of the Closed Period Employees and the list regarding market soundings. This information is handled in accordance with the General Data Protection Regulation ((EU) 2016/679, as amended) and the Data Protection Act (1050/2018, as amended) as well as other applicable legislation, and personal information is not used for any other cause except for fulfilling the obligations set by insider regulation on the Company.

Upon request, it may be necessary to hand over information entered into these lists to FSA or other authorities supervising the enforcement of insider regulation in Finland or abroad.

9 Sanctions for infringements of insider regulation

Infringements of insider regulation may lead to varied severe sanctions:

- administrative sanctions: administrative fine, public warning or default fine;
- criminal sanctions: fine or imprisonment (a maximum of 2 or, with regard to aggravated abuse of inside information, a maximum of 4 years) and a fine imposed on a legal person; and
- other sanctions: damages, forfeiture, and potential sanctions relating to violations of employment or service contract (e.g., disciplinary procedure or termination of the contract). The Company may also notify the FSA or the police of perceived violations.

10 Entry into force and update of the Insider Guidelines

These Insider Guidelines were approved at the meeting of the Company's Board of Directors on 25 February 2021. Insider Guidelines shall be reviewed updated when necessary by the Board of Directors. The Management Team may make minor or technical alterations to this document.
